LAR-101-1

What in the World?!

T/TH 9:30-10:45AM

Hunke

In this seminar class we will examine questions that can help us better understand ourselves and the world in which we live. These questions focus on important issues that we might not think about very often including, what does it mean to be happy? What is the big deal about this adjustment to college? Why is there homelessness and poverty? Why do children go hungry everyday? This course also serves as an introduction to college life, and so we will also spend some time discussing college skills and strategies for success.

LAR-101-2

The History of Work

T/TH 1:00-2:15PM

Begay

Do we work because we have to, because we want to, or a combination of both? How have work and the worker changed over time? How have they stayed the same? This course will examine the history of work beginning with our hunter-and-gatherer ancestors to the present zoom meeting era. Students will reflect upon and discuss how this knowledge can help them advocate for and create their own working life.

LAR-101-ONL2

The Future of Learning: Learning for Life

ONL2 Section 3/17/25 - 5/17/25 cap 5

Paschall

The future will require us to continuously grow and develop. This course will allow you to understand your strengths and begin developing durable skills for a learning-integrative life. This course will introduce students to college-level writing and discussion, as well as engage in critical thinking, critical reading, and critical reflection. Students will gain an understanding of the importance of embracing lifelong, continuous learning by collaboratively exploring the future of learning through multiple perspectives.

LAR-202-1 & 2

Democracy and Diversity

Section 1 T/TH 11:30-12:45PM; Section 2 T/TH 2:30-3:45PM

Johnson-Farr

A course that explores and examines how we create a vision of social justice and equity in our development of a diverse citizenry. Although focus is for pre-service teachers it affords others with hooks to their professional journey in understanding the complexity of the human experience. Required LAR-202 section for students majoring in Education.

LAR-202-3

Taking (Another) Stance

T/TH 9:30-10:45AM

Vertin

This course will examine several contemporary and historical controversies in order to build compelling arguments. Students will engage in two intensive Reacting to the Past role-playing games that place them in moments of historical controversy. The first game confronts the issues that surrounded New Yorkers as they decided whether or not to declare their independence from England. The second game focuses on the 17th century trial of Galileo in which players will debate his discoveries and whether his ideas should be made public. The course concludes with students exploring three current controversial social issues, working in teams in a mock trial debate to a jury of their peers.

LAR-202-4

Inclusive Leadership

T/TH 1:00-2:15PM

Huntsmann

This course will engage you in recognizing and applying inclusive leadership practices and frameworks to thrive in the workplace, community, and relationships. Through service and collaboration, the leadership principles and theories will be grounded in best practices aimed at increasing diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI)--outcomes highly valued in 21st century organizations and teams. Facilitated conversations, group discussions, and assigned readings will challenge you to develop a critical understanding of what it takes to be an inclusive leader and achieve success in complex political, social, and economic environments.

LAR-202-ONL1/ONL2 Integrative Seminar: Athens 403 B.C.

Brady

ONL1 Section 1/15/25 - 3/11/25 ONL2 Section 3/17/25 - 5/17/25 cap 5

This is a course that examines the political philosophies within the democracy of ancient Athens at the end of the Peloponnesian War. After experiencing a devastating conflict with Sparta, the city-state of Athens was in the throes of a crisis that threatened their democratic form of government. This class will offer a simulation of competing ideologies in order to test the durability of democracies along with which ideas gain the most traction in times of duress.

LAR-303-1 Devised Theatre for Social Change Egger
M/W/F 10-10:50AM

This course will engage students in the collaborative nature of creating a devised theatre experience by examining the differences between journalism and performance, while challenging notions of what it means to make social commentary versus working for social change. Students will research, write, and participate in all aspects of the collaborative process from brainstorming and exploring ideas to expressing their views and research, and the course will culminate in an original, devised theatrical event. The course will explore the topic of "Immigration" through the lens of theatrical practice. Utilizing guest artists, techniques such as Augusto Boal's "Theatre of the Oppressed", Anne Bogart's Viewpoints movement work, and other forms of ensemble theatrical work, students will experience fully what it means to translate Story into Action.

LAR-303-2 Religion and Violence Clanton
T/TH 9:30-10:45AM

This course examines the ways in which religion has been used to justify and rationalize acts of violence and terrorism. We will use both theory and case studies to explore different kinds of religious violence, including martyrdom, anti-Semitism, abortion-related violence, and apocalyptic violence.

LAR-303-ONL1/ONL2 Understanding Refugees and Forced Migration Hoffman

ONL1 Section 1/15/25 – 3/11/25 ONL2 Section 3/17/25 - 5/17/25 cap 5

This course will develop students' teamwork and leadership skills to prepare for citizenship or work as they connect theory, practice and experience. Students, drawn from multiple fields of specialized study, will collaboratively analyze a complex real-world problem, develop an empathetic understanding of multiple perspectives needed to comprehend the issue, and propose possible solutions.

Humanities

HUM-210-1 At the Intersection of AI, Humanities, and the Liberal Arts Caldwell & Engebretson
M/W/F 11-11:50AM

This is a course designed to have you investigate topics at the intersection of artificial intelligence (AI), the humanities and the liberal arts. At the end of the course, you will be able to:

- Demystify and define AI, the humanities, the liberal arts, and their intersection
- Apply and demonstrate AI tools used to create artifacts in the humanities
- Find stories that consider the pros and cons of using AI within humanities, their impact on people, and if and when such tools should be used
- Expand the consideration to other disciplines and the liberal arts

The final artifact from this course will be an anthology of work created by the students in the course that tell the stories of those who have applied AI tools in the humanities, the connection of those stories to the liberal arts, and the impact (good, bad or otherwise) those stories have had on humanity. The work created will take many forms including, but not limited to essays, poetry, presentations, montages, movements, music, and podcasts. The anthology may be shared with the Doane community.

Learning Community

EDU-228-LC and GEO-101-LC The Environmentally Literate Citizen (7 cr.) Diercks and Soucek
T/TH 1-3:45PM cap 25

Course learners will demonstrate skills and dispositions they need to understand in order to act on environmental problems and issues as responsible citizens and to continue the learning process throughout their lives. The course will promote active and responsible citizenship by challenging learners to hone and apply problem-solving, analysis, persuasive communication, and other higher-level skills in real-world contexts. These course must be taken together.

Selected Topics

The Civil War and Reconstruction

Buchkoski

T/Th 2:30-3:45PM

In this survey of the American Civil War and Reconstruction periods, students examine the war's causation, the war years, Reconstruction, and memory. Students will gain a deeper understanding of themes including citizenship, environment, military strategy, politics, race, religion, with particular emphasis on the end of slavery. Learning outcomes: 1) engage in historical inquiry, research, and analysis; 2) practice historical empathy through engagement with a diversity of viewpoints; 3) analyze how historiographical interpretations of the civil war have changed over time; 4) generate a historical argument and narrative that is reasoned and based on historical evidence selected, arranged, and analyzed.

SPA-371-1

Latin American Civilizations and Cultures: Race in Latin America

Rivera-Morales

M/W/F 11-11:50AM

This course offers a historical overview of race relations in Latin America and the Caribbean. It starts in the early colonial period of the late 15th and early 16th centuries all the way to the present. Key points of discussion include: the construction of the "indio" (Natives) in the works of Christopher Columbus, ideas of cultural and racial mixture in José Vasconcelos' The Cosmic Race, and Chicana re-framing of mestizaje in the works of Gloria Anzaldúa. By the end of the course, students will gain a richer understanding of race relations in Latin America and the Caribbean.
